SPOTLIGHT ON YOUR R&R TEAM

IT SEEMED ONLY LOGICAL. What else does one do with a physics degree from Carnegie Mellon University and an overwhelming urge to disassemble, analyze and repair troubled British sports cars? Such was the genesis of R&R Auto Service in 1972 under the leadership of Rob Carter.

OVER THE YEARS, R&R has seen many changes, including expanding our service to both domestic and imported vehicles. Through it all, Rob's leadership has remained constant, as has his commitment to providing unparalleled quality of auto service work. Rob's philosophy is that customers will always appreciate and respond positively to a company that puts customer service at the top of its priority list.

ROB CARTER

FROM OUR FIRST conversation with Rob, the owner of R&R, my husband and I had an excellent feeling that we could expect R&R to be honest and fair. For years, R&R has kept our family's three cars in tip-top shape. They do excellent work, give us a general check up each time, but do no more work than needs to be done.

Rob's philosophy is that you'll appreciate a company whose first priority is serving you.

TODAY, working on his own British car takes a back seat to Rob's love for family, God, business, Boy Scouts, and good friends, but you still can take a peek at his pet project—the black 1971 Jaguar XKE patiently awaiting his attention on our lobby floor. •
